Finally Venture Capital Funds Worldwide - Vcequity

Greetings!

What if I could improve the Investment performance of your US listed equity portfolios? Would that be of interest? If yes, please continue. I am an institutionally trained equity sub-manager of a high quality Global Equity Separately Managed Account using long US and US ADR listed stocks and I am currently taking on new accredited investors.

Can you allocate capital to a sub-manager? If not, please read no further. If yes, assess and evaluate my work! Actual results from our research are intriguing. Our goal is for you to be 50%+ ahead of the S&P 500 in five years. Continue to brochure:<http://slidesha.re/daflpm>

This equal weighted global Startups strategy combines two proven disciplines of finding companies with extraordinary fundamentals, while using technical timing analysis to buy or sell them. Investors can imagine looking out three years, and by holding a group of the highest caliber stocks, while rebalancing quarterly, they can potentially realize great success relative to respective indexes. See “Which portfolio would you want to own?” <http://slidesha.re/a7kMtj>

You might ask if 40 equal weighted positions is a sound portfolio construction method. I think so. I did it for five years while working with a $30 billion state fund manager.

A Separately Managed Account Example – 40 equal weighted portfolio positions rebalanced quarterly. This is the discipline. If other managers can allocate $40 billion into 40 stocks we should be able to easily allocate a lesser amount to 40 equally weighted portfolio positions.

I would then look at my fundamental screen for a consensus of several outside, “independent” stock analysts, similar to Zacks, Navellier, or Investors Business Daily. When most have a buy on a stock, that positive decision, made by multiple analysts, permeates down throughout the fund community.

In addition, the process represents an unemotional stock selection process. It doesn't mater what the economy is doing because the system measures where demand is flowing regardless of what is happening in the news on a daily basis.

The program also looks at the technical side backed by an upward price trend with strong earnings momentum while above its 200 day moving average but not overbought. Yet considers selling if it looses its channel trend or if the fundamentals deteriorate. The process is about holding stocks with great fundamentals going up in 40 different slots while leaving the empty slots in cash if nothing is attractive at the time, which is, in essence, a self timing mechanism.

Portfolios – Large, Mid, Small Cap, Sector, Industry, Index, Global, Country, Geographic, Investor Selected Equity Universe. The strategy can be implemented wherever the account is. We do not custody securities.
